THE PHYSICIAN AS ARTIST:

An exhibit of selected works by Meyer M. Melicow

The National Library of Medicine, as part of its regular series of exhibits, is presenting from June 9 – August 22 a collection of paintings and drawings by a prominent uropathologist, Meyer M. Melicow, Given Professor Emeritus of Uropathology at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, New York City.

Displayed in this exhibit are 37 works – oil and acrylic paintings and ink drawings. The works include scenes rendered by Dr. Melicow during his world travels, some whimsical views of New York City, and a number of still life paintings.

Dr. Melicow, the physician, has received many honors both in the U.S. and abroad. He has been cited by the American Medical Association, the American Urological Association, Columbia University, the University of Madrid Medical School, the Jerusalem Academy of Medicine, and the Japanese Urological Association, among others. His papers have been published in leading medical journals and he has delivered lectures and conducted seminars throughout the world.

Dr. Melicow, the artist, has been given recognition by the American Physicians Art Association, of which he is a past president, the American Medical Association, and various other groups. His works have been exhibited nationally, and reproductions have appeared in numerous medical periodicals.

Dr. Melicow resides with his wife, Sylvia, in New York City, and he is still very much active as a teacher of uropathology and as a practicing artist.

The exhibit may be seen at the Library from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday – Saturday (closed Sundays), until August 22.
